Razzaz reviews Jordan's nuclear programme progress with Int'l Advisory Group

Prime Minister Omar Razzaz on Thursday met with the members of the International Advisory Group (IAG), tasked with reviewing Jordan's progress in implementing its nuclear programme, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. The meeting focused on achieving further progress in building the database needed for the Research and Training Reactor (JRTR) and Synchrotron-light for Experimental Science and Applications in the Middle East (SESAME) to conduct advanced scientific researches in the fields of physics, chemistry, health, archaeology and geology. As of today, Jordan is the only Arab and Middle Eastern country that has such facilities, according to Petra. The attendees stressed the importance of exploiting the existence of these facilities at the regional level and of using them as "excellence" centres to train cadres, attract experts and conduct scientific research in all fields. They also highlighted the importance of using JRTR to produce medical radionuclide and of expanding the use of applications in the nuclear medicine field, which would improve the health sector and its services in the country by providing chemical elements such as Iodine and Technetium.

Jordan 'committed' to IMF-supervised reform plan

Jordan said on Monday that it is fully committed to the $700 million Extended Fund Facility (EFF) with the International Monetary Fund (IMF). Jordanian officials will soon meet with IMF representatives to brief them on the situation in Jordan and present a national economic and fiscal reform plan that will be in line with the IMF programme and help realise its objectives, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of State Rajai Muasher said on Monday. "The national programme that we will discuss with the IMF will take our needs, priorities and conditions into account," said Muasher in a meeting with media representatives. In 2016, Jordan and the IMF reached the 36-month EFF programme under which the two sides agreed on six conditions that aim at reducing public debt to safe levels and stimulating the economy. Under the deal, Jordan is expected to generate around JD520 million dinars in additional revenues this year alone.
