Jordan, Germany sign soft loan agreement worth 86 million euros

Jordan and Germany on Wednesday signed a concessional loan agreement worth 86 million euros to support the Kingdom's economic reforms. The loan was announced by German Chancellor Angela Merkel during her visit to the Kingdom last June, according to a statement sent from the Planning Ministry to The Jordan Times. The agreement was signed by Planning Minister Mary Kawar, Vice Chancellor of Germany and Minister of Finance Olaf Scholz and member of the executive board of the German Development Bank, Joachim Nagel. The loan, which is part of the aid package worth 462.12 million euros that was announced on Tuesday, will be completely transferred before the end of 2018 in support of the public budget to tackle the economic challenges that face the Kingdom and in appreciation of the economic and fiscal reform progress made by the Jordanian government, the statement said. Prior to signing the agreement, Kawar met with Scholz and State Secretary for Economic and Fiscal Strategy at the Federal Ministry of Finance Wolfgang Schmidt. During the meeting, she briefed the German officials on Jordan's economic challenges and the reform plan adopted by the government to deal with them.
