January-February tourism revenues up by 16 per cent — ministry

The Kingdom's tourism revenues in the first two months of the year increased by 16.2 per cent to $652 million, up from $561 million in the same period last year, according to official figures released on Monday. In February 2017, tourism revenues stood at $284.3 million, up by 21.8 per cent, when compared to $233.4 million in February last year, according to data by the Central Bank of Jordan, carried by the Jordan News Agency, Petra. The increase in tourism revenues was attributed to a 17 per cent rise in individual overnight visitors, with 262,500 tourists in February 2017, compared to 224,400 tourists in February 2016. Individual overnight visitors in 2016 stood at around 3.86 million, registering a 2.6 per cent increase compared to 2015, while group overnight visitors were around 314,000, registering a 20 per cent increase over the same period, according to Tourism Ministry figures.

Manufacturing diversity key to boosting Jordan's export revenue

By diversifying the basket of manufactured goods and increasing the sophistication of these products, Jordan has an opportunity to enhance export revenues and boost its competitiveness, a recently launched study concluded. Carried out by the Jordan Strategy Forum, the first part of the "Jordanian Product Space" study sought to examine the Jordanian economic complexity as a driver of economic prosperity. Over a 50-year period, from 1964 to 2014, Jordan's Economic Complexity Index (ECI) ranking among the rest of the world witnessed a "huge" decrease, dropping from 15th to 67th place. The economic complexity of a country is derived from an evaluation of the diversification and sophistication of a country's basket of manufactured goods. While chemical products, textiles and vegetables have the largest share of exports, other sectors like wood production and transportation have the highest levels of sophistication, according to the study.
