Expats' remittances stabilise at end of November

According to the Central Bank of Jordan (CBJ) the total remittances of Jordanians working abroad amounted to $3.4 billion by the end of November 2017, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported on Sunday. The figure is equal to that recorded in the same period last year. However, the CBJ reported at the end of May, 2017, that remittances of expats stood at JD1.05 billion, nearly JD17 million more than remittances registered during the same period of 2016, marking a 1.5 per cent increase. A rise of 2.4 per cent was recorded in the first third of 2017, compared with the same period in the previous year.

House endorses budget bill amid noticeable abstentions

The Lower House on Sunday voted in favour of the state budget and budgets of independent government units draft law in a session that witnessed the absence of more than 30 MPs, who boycotted the deliberations, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. Among the 99 legislators present (out of 130) in the evening session, 58 lawmakers voted yea. The Islamist Islah bloc (14 seats), and other deputies, had announced boycotting the debate in protest to lifting subsidies off essential commodities that have been a fixture in the national economy over decades, including bread.

Gasoline, diesel prices up

The government's fuel pricing committee on Sunday decided to reduce the price of kerosene by JD0.030 and increase the price of unleaded 90-octane gasoline to JD0.730 per litre, up from JD0.720. The committee decided that unleaded 95-octane gasoline will be sold at JD0.955 per litre, up from JD0.945 and diesel to be sold at JD0.550 up from JD0.450 during January. The committee noted that the price of gas cylinders will remain unchanged at JD7, despite a real-term increase to JD9.25. Prices of oil derivatives in the local market are calculated based on international prices, with the addition of other costs such as shipment, handling and taxes.
