The Ministry of Industry, Trade and Supply on Monday said it has intensified inspection rounds on various markets and shops to monitor the price range and supplies of foodstuff and edible commodities. In a statement carried by the Jordan News Agency, Petra, the ministry also pledged to make sure that prices are not raised during the month of Ramadan. Meanwhile, the ministry reassured the public that supplies are in check and that competition in the market will keep the prices within range, especially with the consumer corporations' discounts, in reference to military and civil service outlets that offer goods at lower prices to members of the military and security agencies as well as government officials. The market price index remains stable as a result, the ministry explained, as suppliers were instructed to increase their stocks of foodstuffs and edible goods ahead of the holy month.
