GCC demand for Jordan's agricultural produce expected to rise

Jordan's exports of sheep and agricultural produce to the Arab Gulf countries are expected to increase with the fasting month of Ramadan, the Ministry of Agriculture said on Sunday. There is a growing demand for the country's fruits and vegetables, especially summer fruits, coming from the Gulf countries, ministry spokesperson Nimer Haddadin said, adding that sheep exports are also expected to increase as consumption rises during Ramadan. "A total of 2,150 tonnes of fruits and vegetables were exported to the Gulf countries on Saturday, and their demand is expected to increase," Haddadin said. He indicated that the recent ban by the United Arab Emirates (UAE) on some of the Kingdom's types of vegetables did not affect the volume of agricultural exports to the Gulf, indicating that the Kingdom's main vegetable exports to the Gulf are tomato and cucumber, among other crops.
